Instructions

(Read carefully before beginning the Examination)

To be called into the ministry is indeed a “high calling.” The minister holds an exalted and responsible station in this life. In order to fill his/her position with honor and good effect, the minister should study diligently the knowledge and wisdom found in the Holy Scriptures, in order that he/she may be “approved unto God, a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the world of truth” (2 Timothy 3:15). Above all, the minister should seek to be filled and empowered with the gifts and graces of the Holy Spirit. The ministerial candidate as outlined by the General Assembly before he/she is licensed and/or ordained (Acts 15:22-30; 16:3-5; 1 Corinthians 1:10; 1 Thessalonians 2:14; Philippians 3:16; Hebrews 13:7, 17).

The following Scriptures should be read and studied carefully before the candidate proceeds to answer the examination questions: Matthew 10:16; James 1:5; 3:13, 17; 1 Peter 5:1-10; 1 Thessalonians 5:12-15; 1 Timothy 3:1-16; 4:12; Titus 1:5-9; 2:7,8; 3:9; Hebrews 13:5, 7, 9, 17; 2 Timothy 2:23-26; 3:10-17; Acts 6:1-7; Romans 15:1-6; 1 Corinthians 11:10; 2 Corinthians 13:11; Ephesians 4:31, 32; Philippians 1:27; 2:1-13; Revelations 22:17-21.

The office of bishop is the highest rank of the ministry. The qualifications listed by the apostle Paul show the sacredness and importance of the office. One entering it should do so, therefore, with fear and humility before Christ, who is the Chief Shepherd and Bishop of our souls. The holder of this sacred office should seek always to be filled with the Spirit, and to walk circumspectly before God and man.

The office of deacon is highly exalted in the Scriptures; its importance may be seen in its function and purpose in the New Testament church. Deacons are indispensable “helps” in assisting the bishops and serving the purposes of the church. With the bishops, they form the eldership of the church, offering guidance and valuable service to the flock of God, particularly in regards to the temporal needs and the business aspects of the church. The moral qualifications of deacons are therefore equal to that of bishops, for they assist the bishops in overseeing the house of God.

The office of evangelist is no less important than that of bishop and deacon, though the gift and function is different. Evangelists serve primarily to proclaim the Gospel, seek for the salvation of the lost, build up the faith of the saints, administer physical and spiritual healing, and thereby assist the bishops in building up the household of God. With the bishops, evangelists are given “for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ” (Ephesians 4:11-16).

In proceeding with this examination, the candidate should note every question carefully and write the answer plainly (using pen or pencil). When the question is direct, answer it with a simple “yes” or “no.” If any explanation is necessary, write it in the space provided at the end of the examination under the heading of “Remarks.” Be as thorough as possible in order to avoid delay of your certification, or any further investigation into your case. In writing your essay on the subject, “My Understanding And Vision Of The Ministry,” take time to pray and to organize your thoughts before you write, and be as clear and concise as possible. When you have completed the examination, read over your answers and check for any mistakes.

When completed, the examination certificate should be mailed to the regional (or state) overseer, or sent directly to the office of the Presiding Bishop. While you wait returns, make special and wise preparations to enter your particular office of ministry with honor and dignity.

You may rest assured that you have the love, sympathy, and respect of those in charge of your examination, and you will be given just and gracious consideration.
